

Abstract

An in-flight refueling system for an unmanned aircraft is responsive to sensed forces acting on a refueling receptacle of the aircraft by a separate refueling probe, to control movements of the aircraft as it is being refueled to 5 reduce the magnitude of the sensed forces and thereby maintain the coupling of the aircraft with the refueling probe.